1. Plaque becomes a clot (AKA______________) that breaks off and travels (AKA ________) and blocks a blood vessel (AKA______________).

2. A clot that has moved, but does not necessarily block a vessel is called a/an _____________.

3. A coronary infarct is also called a __________________ or a heart attack.

4. Name some anticoagulants. ____________________________________________________________

5. Name two common drugs that increase the tendency to bleed, and therefore must be stopped for a few days before surgery.________________________________

6. PT stands for _________________________ and measures clotting in the ________________ pathway.  (extrinsic or intrinsic)
   PTT stands for _______________________________ and measures clotting in the ________________ pathway.  (extrinsic or intrinsic)

7. __________________________________ can occur during the first pregnancy if the placenta tears and allows a baby's Rh positive blood to leak into the mom's Rh negative blood vessels.
   ____________________________________ occurs during a second pregnancy due to prior leakage of a first baby's Rh positive blood into an Rh negative mother's blood system, or if the mother has received Rh positive blood via a transfusion.
   (erythroblastosis fetalis or hemolytic disease of the newborn)
1. thrombus; embolus; infarct
2. embolism
3. myocardial infarction
4. heparin, Coumadin, Warfarin, thrombomodulin
5. aspirin; NSAIDs (nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs)
6. extrinsic; intrinsic
7. hemolytic disease of the newborn; erythroblastosis fetalis